The chief event of to-day was the parade of the Senior and Junior Order of United American Mechanics in honor of placing the National flag on the public school buildings of the city. The procession, headed by Bowering's brass band, was many squares Bowering's brass band, was many squares long and composed of the two orders here, the grand officers, the mayor (in carriages), common council, school board and invited guests. An interesting feature of the parade was a large wagon, beautifully decorated in the polors of the order, containing about thirty little girls, who sang just before the presentation the "Red, White and Blue."

the "Red. White and Blue."

The Bible and flags were presented to the city on behalf of the two orders by Judge John T. Goodrick in a most patriotic speech.

Mayor A. P. Rowe accepted them on behalf of the city. The mayor in his remarks re-ferred to the fact that it would be well also to place beside the "Stars and Stripes" a State lag, as all the school buildings were State property. The procession then moved to the property. The procession then moved to the island, where a picnic was being given for the benefit of the two orders, and the address of elcome to the visiting members by Senator A. Little, Jr., was responded to by George Howard, State councellor of Order United E. Howard, State councellor of Order United American Mechanics, Junior; and A. G. THE CANNIBAL CARIBS some of Their Descendants to Visit the World's Fair.

Mr. Frederick A. Ober, who has been for ome time in the Leeward islands on his mission as special commissioner to the West Indies, reports that the Columbian exposition has been very well advertised in all the places visited by him, and that there will come to the fair a number of the descendants of the Caribs. The Lesser Antilles have long been famous as the home of the last of the Capibal Caribs, discovered by Columbus in 1933, on his second voyage to the New World. Save for the fact that the first voyage brought to the notice of Europe these hitherto unknown islands, and that their discovery thus partock more strongly of the romantic, the second voyage was more replete if possible with interesting incident. The approach to Dominica, which was discovered on Sunday, and hence received its own distinctive appellation, is related by Columbus in picturesque terms.

Finding no anchorage on the rough windward coast of this beautiful and mountainous island his fleet turned toward another island, which rose out of the sea and seemed to touch the clouds. There the weary voyagers found a safe harbor and, at the same time, the first indications of human habitations. If the account of the Spaniards is to be believed, the huts on the shore were the abode of cannibals, for the evidences were strewn on every sidelegs and arms freshly severed, heads, skulls and heaps of human bones, as well as a stew of human flesh simmering in a pot in one of the huts. Fortunately for the Spaniards all of the male Caribs were away on the warpath and only the women were at home.

This place is well known from the accurate account left of it by Columbus, who describes its natural features exactly as they exist today, particularly the great cascade, which seemed to him to descend from the clouds. Mr. Ober visited the waterfall, and the dense forests are apparently unchanged since Columbus landed there. Throughout these islands relics of the Caribs have been found, such as stone axes, hatchets, warclubs, which the natives call "thunderbolts," and many fine collections have already been secured for the exposition. The baskets made by these Caribs are of peculiar shape and waterproof. They are collecting materials and will manufacture them on the exposition

Costa Rican Fauna and Flora. Extensive preparations are on foot in Costa Rica to make a very considerable display at the World's Columbian exposition. "Our exhibit," says the commissioner, "is rapidly reaching completion. I have already received several thousands of interesting articles, both natural and manufactured, and just now I am receiving the living plants and the ornamental ones which I collected at Colfo Dulce and San Carlos. I have also a collection of more than 3,000 beautiful birds, which I shall place in the galleries adjoining the gardens. The government has already sent to me fine plans for the Costa Rican pavilion. The calm and yet gently stimulating stmosphere in which he lived in his Hbrary, and which was due to his recolled tion of stirring events and the information regarding them which he obtained from the libraries, delighted him so that he said that it seemed to him that he would not care again to become a man of public

Socialism in Paraguay.

A socialistic society has recently been organized in Paraguay. Its rules are more sweeping perhaps than those of any similar organization in the world, and are as follows: No individual property; absolute equality, without distinction of sex or race; the rule to be exercised by the majority; unrestricted freedom of criticism by pen or speech; the total amount of material labor necessary for the well being of the colony to be reduced to a minimum and equally apportioned among all, according to the abilities of each.

be Held in New York. A meeting of members of the Christian Eudeavor Societies in this city was held at Seventh-street Christian church on Sunday evening to make arrangements for the leaving evening to make arrangements? If the leaving of the Richmond delegation which will attend the international convention to be held in New York city from July 5th to the 11th. Among the delegates who will go from here will be Rev. Jabez Hall, John D. Murrell and William C. Wext. Secretary Candlish, of the Young Men's Christian Association, who will to-morrow go to New York to spend his vacation, will also take part in the proceed.

It will be the eleventh international convention of the Society of Christian Endeavor, and Madison Square Garden has been secured for the meetings. That establishment can un comfortably accommodate about 16,000 people and about 10,000 comfortably. There have been 17,680 rooms engaged for the delegates, and it will probably be necessary to hold several conventions, and the Madison-Avenue Presbyterian and the Marble Collegiate above have have been secured. burch have also been secured.

A distinctive feature of the great gathering will be its resemblance, as far as hotel ar-rangements are concerned, to a national po-litical convention. Each State delegation rangements are concerned, to a national political convention. Each State delegation has been assigned to a leading hotel, as near the garden as possible, and to-day the reception committee, at the head of which is Charles Caldwell, will detail committees to every depot in the city and in Jersey, and members of these will act as escort to those arriving. Four hundred young New Yorkers and Brooklynites have placed their services at the disposal of the general committee and are arranging for fitting welcomes. The committee are prepared to handle 30,000 guests.

The growth of the Christian Endeavor Society dates back to 1881. In 1882 there were six of these societies, with a membership of Last January there were 18,500 societies with a membership of 1,100,000,

A Midnight Fire.

The alarm of fire last night about 12 o'clock was caused by the burning of the confectionery store on Venable street between Nineteenth and Twentieth streets. The store was occupied by John Simpson and was owned by George W. Strang. The loss on the building, amounting to about $500, is covered by insurance. It is believed that the loss on stock, amounting to $400 or $500, is also covered by insurance. The origin of the fire is unknown.

The general belief in Savannah now is that the Central railroad system must pass through the Central railroad system must pass through a mild form of reorganization. It will be necessary to do this, it is thought before its credit can be re-established. Part of the reorganization plan, it is believed, will be a reduction in interest paid to leased roads, such as the Southwestern. The present interest is regarded as too high to be carried. By is regarded as too high to be carried. By reducing fixed charges in this way and mak-ing other necessary changes, the Central can be placed on its feet again. The con-fidence of the directors and others remain unabated and they express themselves as sat-ished that the salvation of the system will not be as difficult or as prolonged a job as some are inclined to believe. An urgent call has been issued for a meeting of the directors on Monday morning at the Central railroad bank in Savannali. President Comer will not be there. The directors will have full information from him then, it is supposed, with some suggestions which they will discuss. The meeting is a most important one, and an effort will be made to get the entire board to-

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly falling to cure with local treatment pronounced it in-curable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional treatment on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address
